Sullivan Roofing Names New VP of Safety Operations

Schaumburg, IL— (May 21, 2009) — Sullivan Roofing, Inc., the leading commercial, industrial and architectural sheet metal roofing company in the Chicago area is pleased to announce the promotion of Mike Sullivan to vice president of safety operations. Mike Sullivan has been with Sullivan Roofing since its inception in 1999. Prior to being named vice president of safety operations, Sullivan served as the company's Safety Director. In his new role, Sullivan will be responsible for company-wide safety, any customer service related safety inquiries and will initiate all OSHA compliance, record keeping plans and operations. In addition, he will work closely with other members of the safety staff at Sullivan Roofing to design site-specific safety plans and manage field operations.

"It is an honor to helm the safety operations for Sullivan Roofing," says Sullivan, vice president of safety operations for Sullivan Roofing. "This is a company that is as focused on safety as it is on getting the job done well, and I hope to take our safety initiatives to the next level of readiness and organization."

Founded in 1999, Sullivan Roofing, Inc. uses products from a variety of leading roofing manufacturers and is a single source, certified Carlisle SynTec applicator installing Carlisle's complete line of products. Sullivan also has a full state-of-the-art architectural sheet metal fabrication shop that makes all of the company's roof-related sheet metal flashing in-house. The company specializes in architectural standing seam metal roofing, insulated wall panels and composite metal wall panels and uses sheet metal products from manufacturers such as Petersen Aluminum and McElroy Metals. The company is the leading commercial roofing contractor in the Chicago area for new roofs, maintenance and service and has helmed several high profile projects throughout northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin including: the Sears Centre Arena, Cabela's, and John Deere's Distribution Center. Currently, Sullivan is the exclusive roofing contractor working on the prestigious Metea Valley High School in Aurora, Illinois. Additionally, Sullivan Roofing sets the industry standard with its maintenance program, material and labor guarantees, quality assurances and a comprehensive safety program. Sullivan Roofing's mission is to provide its clients with the very best in safety, quality, production and service.
